Specifical'y, you aim to secure such an extension of the coinage of si fiver as wil give lat meta, an ecual chance with gold; that also is a just and right purpose. Notaing under our form of government is so absolutely incontrovereible as the right of the majority to insist toat their wil sha prevail when fully and fairly expressed. And by a majority mean a majority of neon's not a majority of the government.

If there is any class of people in politcal or ticancial circles in this country who have grown into the opinion that their position or their superior advantiges of observation, or their greater weath imposes upon them a patriotic responsibility to put a cheek upon any celiberate, lawful purpose of the mupority it is high time their opinion was corrected. It is serve is not too muc't ing reso ution: to say that something strong fresemo ing a greenmenta conspiracy das or here is on the silver enestion-a conspiracy that has survived the defeat of both political parties and triumphecagainst the judgment of the country.

It is well to proceed with a caution in such a momentous matter. But lieve the friends of silver neen precinitate? Have they not displayed a long, a most exemplary, a most patriotic patience out of respect to the alleged coubis of a minority, including, it is true, many recognized leaders of opinion who profess to lear tant the policy of expanding the currency of the nation on a coinage basis would disrupt the finances of the country. The trouble with those par ties who have mainly influenced the government in its discrimination against selver is that they argue from a standpoint o' oure'y se'fish persona interest and consider that what is for their good should be satisfactory to the rest of the country. They are the great money elements of the seaboard cities. Now, nothing can be Mainer than that in any given market the less money there is to end the gigher tracted currency is therefore in the in- men made engitary speeches in favor of with the extremely low range of prices terest of the maney lending class. This fact has enabled it to prevail against the will of the country.

We have been patient. We have agiated the question for years inquiringly in a lits bearings. We have appealed to the reason of the people. We have asked them to study it in all its relations to the productive interests of the north, the south, the east and the west. We have demonstrates that for every cenadded to the price of an ounce of silver a nieke will be added to the price of a busne, of wheat, a cent will be added to the price of a pound of cotton and a colar to the price of a nead of Seet. We have shown that all the varied interests of the producing classes throughout the of the silver miners on this question, and States congress was contemporaneous Seven in That we demand the repeat country are identica with the interests there is no longer a reasonable doubt with a similar one on he part of some of all acts by worth si ver has been dethat a strong majority of the country is foreign governments not so immediately monetized or college im led by string,

At this moment, when a taste for the national sport of Spain is making its way into other European countries, and especially into France, where the Parisbuilting is now one of the attractions of the French capital, it may not be uninteresting to describe the brilliant career, now ended, of one of the most famous. but learners of Yacric.

Sa vacor Sanchez, better known as Francuelo, has just entered into private 8000 and devoted himself explusively to ife rather sudden y. He killed his last bull at one of the Sunday ou fights of San Sebastian a few cays ago. | Never had the Plaza de Toros of this city been so crowded. People cocked arther from all parts of the north of Spain and from southern France to witness the leavetaking of this great matador.

Frascuelo entered the ring with his cuadrilla, or band of armed a is, at his heels, he himself being the central figgraceful as ever in his gaudy at ire. Bis face alone pore traces of recen suffering, and its eyes wancered almost mourn-Ifully over the scene of many previous triumpus. Ringing cheers from the spectators of a. ranks showed him that than their father. He akes pride in his popularity was as great as of yore.

Pascuelo is very little over 50. He would have still been game for many a. bullight if his right hand had not been chabled by a wound received a few months ago. Since theh Frascuelo has been quite another man. He seemed to have a presentiment that his career was drawing to a close. Showing his swolen nanc to a friend, he remarked sadly: Once upon a time I thought I would Lie in the ring, on the horns of a Muira built but alast this little scratch will oblige me to give up my profession."

Poor fellow, it does seem very hard for him to have to retire in the very prime of life and at the climax of his success! He may be believed, when he declares that he would sooner have died the crowds, whose darling he has been for twenty years. Indeed, the forty scars that he carries on his body show that he never feared to "risk his skin," as the Spaniarcs say, in order to wring applause from the public. Though the coc.ors state that Frascuelo will not lose his right hand, it is hard lines, for him to know that he cannot any longer make use of it to handle the red closs and his
